school outing

This Monday, December 12th, we, the beauty class 1ESTH1, were in Paris, Galerie Lafayette and on the Avenue des champs elysee, visiting the department stores of Paris.

This being for our personal culture but also to learn more about the world of work in luxury.

What does it feel like to work in the luxe industry ?

"The people who work in the luxury industry are dressed in black, in general. The women have heels and makeup. They are very professional and they keep smiling at the clients. They ask you if you need some help and talk about the news arrivals."

Where were we ?

- Printemps
- Hausmann
- Galerie Lafayette
- Yves Rocher
- Sephora
- Guerlain

My opinion:

"I think that it was a great experience especially for our future plans."

In the 1950's the eyes and eyelashes were made up with black antimony, very toxic since it is a cousin of arsenic. The lips were covered with vermilion or with a mixture of cochineal tincture. Vermilion was also worn on the nails and cheeks.

WOMEN WHO HAVE MARKED HISTORY

In 1967 Katerine Switzer ran the marathon of Boston but in the 1960s it was banned for women's to run.

She ran again the marathon of Boston in 1974 and she ends up 3rd; 1st in 1974 and 2nd in 1975. All in all she will have run 40 marathons.

After her success, it was allowed to run the marathon of Boston for women. She became best friends with the man who stopped her from running in 1967.

She created lots of associations for women who run. Lots of women run the marathon of Boston today. She did a lot of conferences in the world.

Food Wars

Sōma Yukihira grew up in the kitchen of the family restaurant and has always been preparing to take over. But his daily life is turned upside down when his father accepts a position in a New York palace. The young boy was then sent to a prestigious culinary school. Determined not to disappoint his family, Sōma will have to compete with genius to establish himself among the best talents.

Sōma, from his childhood, was interested in cooking, an interest he shared with his father Jōichirō Yukihira. Sōma, for example, was only three years old when he first worked in the family restaurant, Yukihira. Sōma was soon able to cook some family dishes on his own, even though he was only in kindergarden. He even worked in the canteen of his kindergarden, suprising the various chefs working with him. Between and thanks to these various experiences, Sōma did not hesitate to challenge his father in culinary battles. Despites the succesive defeats, he continued to train and improve so that he could defeat his father. These various years spent alongside his father in the family restaurant to train allowed him to experiment various facets of cooking. From the creation of dishes, to stress management, to customer satisfaction. However, after 489 defeats, Sōma was forced to leave the family nest and study at the Tōtsuki Academy, a culinary school. This is how is adevnture in the culinary world begins...

In my opinion Food Wars is a very good manga. I really appreciate the story of the main character, I also really like the manga in general, all the different characters, the recipes they make (the recipes also present in the manga).

The only negative point is the number of erotic scenes that we find in different parts of the manga. Despite that, I recommend it to the fan of cooking and animes!

"A manga that makes me hungry every time I read it and very funny with these erotic scenes. The only downside is that I find that it goes around in circles... But it's still a good manga, I recommend it to those who like this kind of manga."

"I've never seen it, but the name makes me want to look."

"I think this manga is too sexualized, especially the female characters when they taste Sōma's dishes: the orgasms they have are too erotic, almost borderline hentai."
